2 Technology—now and then

Vocabulary: Verbs of cause and effect

Work in pairs. Look at these photographs, then discuss the questions below.

1. Name each item. What do you know about each one? What do they all have in common?
2. Choose three of the items and decide how they have changed people's lives.
3. Which do you think have a direct influence on people's lives today? Give examples and reasons.

For some verbs the noun form is the same as the verb, for example, influence. You can also make nouns from verbs by adding endings like -ment, -ion and -ing. Decide what the noun form of each of the verbs below is for. Which verb does not follow any of these patterns?

1 improve	2 destroy	3 shape	4 result	5 affect	6 harm	7 enhance	8 promote	9 damage	10 ruin	11 produce	12 factor	13 advance	14 deteriorate	15 achieve	16 attract
-----------	-----------	---------	----------	----------	--------	-----------	-----------	----------	---------	------------	-----------	------------	----------------	------------	------------

Engaging and relevant topics

Technology—now and then

The verbs and nouns in exercise 2 can be used to describe changes in something. Work in pairs. Decide if you would use each verb and noun to describe a positive change, a negative change, or a neutral change (one that is neither positive nor negative).

Reverse sentences 1-9 so that they contain the verb in brackets. Make any other necessary changes.

Example:
The use of mobile phones is having a dramatic effect on the way we communicate. (affect)
The use of mobile phones is dramatically affecting the way we communicate.

- The demand for fuel is bringing about the destruction of the way of life of the inhabitants of rainforests. (destroy)
- People constantly debate whether television has a positive or negative influence on society. (influence)
- The company restructuring will lead to a significant improvement in profits. (improve)
- Climate change has led to the ruin of many crops. (ruin)
- The fire did not do as much harm to the mountainside as people first thought. (harm)
- The conflict resulted in a sharp deterioration in relations between the two countries. (deteriorate)
- The affair caused enormous damage to his reputation. (damage)
- Many people like Einstein and Newton changed the shape of the world. (shape)
- Artificial intelligence is having a huge impact on the development of technology. (impact)

In academic writing which are more common, sentences with nouns or adjectives with verbs? For sentences 1-7 below, complete the gaps using the nouns in exercise 2.

- Advertising companies increase sales through the _____ion of goods on TV.
- Some pessimists argue that the human race's love of technology will eventually cause the _____ion of society.
- _____ments in technology have gathered pace in recent years as the speed of computers has increased.
- The greatest human _____ment is the invention of the wheel not the computer.
- What is the _____ion of the latest electronic gadgets for consumers?
- Why is the _____ing of new ideas so crucial for developing new products?

What to expect in the exam

- In IELTS Listening Section 2 of the exam you will hear a monological (one person speaking), but sometimes you may hear one person answering questions. The topic is usually of general interest and there can be two or three sets of questions.
- You will be given time to look at the questions before you begin and in the middle of the recording.
- At the end of the section, you will be given time to check your answers.

The items listed in questions 16-20 on page 20 are in the order they appear in the monologue. You will probably not hear the same words and phrases, so you will have to listen for synonyms or paraphrases. Look at the adjectives listed in A-F and think of at least one synonym for each.
